

Community Training

Corporate Culcha has proven experience in delivering accredited / non-accredited training and support projects in remote and regional communities for industry and government.

Our expertise is particularly suited to time and geographically challenged projects as Corporate Culcha can facilitate training services simultaneously across multiple sites whilst maintaining a consistent formula to ensure optimum outcomes for clients.

In all, we have access to 15 accredited Workplace Assessors and Trainers (TAE) with our talented pool of trainers being highly respected and experienced. Both Indigenous and non-Indigenous, they are skilled in developing and facilitating training that is sensitive to the unique learning needs of those in remote and regional locations.

Our training delivers participants real qualifications with practical applications! During 2011 and 2012 Corporate Culcha implemented accredited mentor training and support services on behalf of FAHCSIA to over 430 Mentors, Community Development Officers and other CDEP staff across remote Northern Territory, Queensland and Western Australia.

The project required commitment, respect, innovation and resilience by our staff to successfully deliver the program, and to far exceed the KPI's set by FAHCSIA.

Since 2014 Corporate Culcha has been facilitating training in remote communities under the Remote Schools Attendance Strategy (RSAS) for NESAs and the Department of Prime Minister and Cabinet. The training has focused on capacity and capability building of the RSAS Officers across remote Australia.

AHC31510 Certificate III in Indigenous Land Management

In response to the growing Indigenous ranger programs and land management services in remote and regional Australia and the new direction of Government to support land based economies in Indigenous communities, Corporate Culcha and Westrain have released this new course.

For the past 12 months Corporate Culcha, together with our training partner, Westrain, has focused on the delivery of our newly accredited training program AHC31510 Certificate III in Indigenous Land Management in the beautiful and remote Western Australian communities of Spinifex, (approximately 800kms east of Kalgoorlie), Norseman, Laverton, Leonora and Carnarvon.

The course, which is now nationally accredited, provides real qualifications for real jobs that are now emerging and importantly provides accreditation for existing workers in ranger programs and land management services, formalising the extensive knowledge, experience and skill sets of these workers.

Our facilitators are embedded in the community for the duration of the course, travelling on country to demonstrate and learn in a practical way. It's a great experience for both the students and our trainers!

National Employment Services Australia (NESA) Strategic Partnership

Corporate Culcha is now a Gold Industry Partner of NESA. This alliance will allow access by NESA members nationally to Corporate Culcha's talented pool of Indigenous and non-Indigenous trainers.

We can conduct your training, or facilitate to your learners any of the courses we specialise in, including Indigenous Land Management, Indigenous Mentoring, Hospitality, Cultural Awareness and Competency.

We also have access to many other accredited training courses which could suit your needs.

To enquire how we can support your organisation to implement community training programs please contact us on 1300 CULCHA (1300 285 242) or email info@corporateculcha.com.au
